Project at Collegium de Lyon : « Multiculturalism, immigration and identity in Western Europe and the US. »

My project focuses on the challenge of comparative studies on ethnic and racial diversity in Western Europe and the United States. The objective of my research is to overcome existing limits and drawbacks of the traditional use of the notion of 'model of integration' in comparing French, British, Dutch, and US integration policies and politics. Besides, my research is coupled with a collaborative project involving international scholars who will address the question of methods and concepts essential to the transatlantic comparative study of multiculturalism and immigration from an interdisciplinary perspective.

Keywords : Multiculturalism, ethnicity, immigration, citizenship, national models of integration, comparative methods
